STAFF RECOMMENDATIONS

Thorndike Press wouldn't be the leading Large Print publisher if it weren't for our staff. We are passionate about what we do — which is providing the best overall experience we can for our customers and readers. Additionally, at Thorndike Press we put the “V” in voracious when it comes to reading and loving books!

Over the coming months, meet our staff and find out what we are reading and recommending! Enjoy and HAPPY READING!

If you like frontier fiction the way the West was, then The Righteous Revenge of Lucy Moon is the read for you.

Lucy and her new husband Jim are called back from their honeymoon to attend her mother's funeral. Lucy — along with the help of friends and the not so friendly — sets out to find her mother's murderer. The story crosses paths with other rebels of that era with a very interesting connection to Lucy. The plot is on the “gritty” side with plenty of action. This one is a definite page-turner for sure!

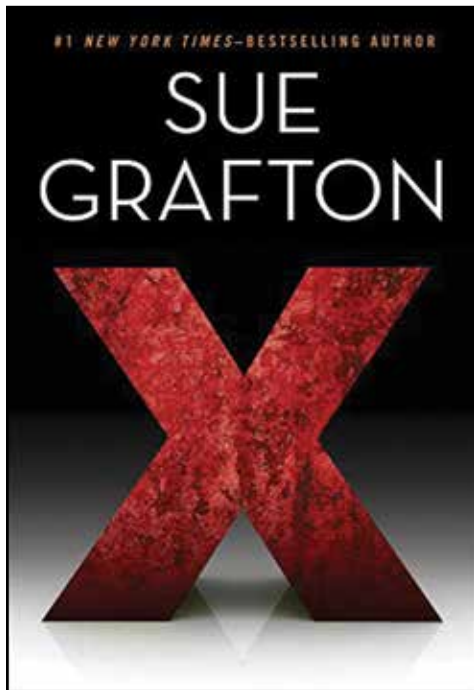

Nivette Jackaway, Contracts Manager

I've been with Thorndike Press for 23 years. I started out typesetting and six months later I transferred to the Editorial Department as Contract Coordinator. In 2004 I was promoted to Contracts Manager. It's kept me on my toes all these years and I can't say that I've ever been bored!

Along with being an avid reader of Frontier Fiction, my passion is making jewelry, which you can find on many Thorndike employees and a few Five Star authors. I love to play in my flower/vegetable garden and when I can, I enjoy being in my Kayak and being at the coast. I still have a few years in the work force but when I retire it will be hard to leave my Thorndike family . . . but with every winter that comes my way I hear the beaches of Florida calling me!

OUR PEER PICKS SELECTOR FOR SEPTEMBER IS . . .

Mamie Anthoine Ney, the Director of the Auburn (Maine) Public Library.

Join us to follow Mamie's picks and read about her views on large print, collection development and other best practices.

Successful Promotion of Large Print . . .

At our library the location of our large print collection is one of the keys for successful promotion. Our regular and large print books are close by so it is just as easy to discover a good read in large print as it is in regular print. We display our new large print selections with their covers facing out — a practice that's used throughout the library as much as possible. We also list new large print books in our monthly press releases and online postings. We send large print selections to our outreach programs for seniors. However, our most effective promotional tool is our staff. They excel in readers advisory which allows them to do a lot of hand-selling. That personal touch is much appreciated by our customers and something we pride ourselves in.

On a personal note . . .

One of my earliest memories is “reading” to my uncle . . . from a Latin/English dictionary that I carried everywhere. I loved that book and any book that I could get my hands on. It didn't matter that I had no clue what the words on the page were.

Once I did learn to read, I just never stopped — making regular pilgrimages to the library and the newsstand with my dad.

Reading kept me sane in college and grad school, taking time to read for at least a few pages of a fun book every night.

I meandered through a number of careers — manufacturing, banking, law, accounting, and even a bit of teaching, but when I entered the South Carolina MLIS program I knew that I had found my niche. The opportunity to become a librarian has been a wonderful gift. I love my job and the fact that I can use all the skills acquired over the years to lead a very special public library. It is a “great good thing” that so much of my work connects me to reading and people. I am especially honored to be a member of the Maine Readers' Choice Award committee, which offers an opportunity to read the best in literary fiction . . . and a lot of it.

PRETTY BABY Mary Kubica

“A superb psychological thriller.” — starred, Publishers Weekly

Heidi Wood has always been a charitable woman. Still, her husband and daughter are horrified when Heidi returns home one day with a young woman named Willow and her four-month-old baby in tow. Disheveled and apparently homeless, the girl could be a criminal. Despite their objections, Heidi offers Willow and the baby refuge in their home. But as she tries to help Willow, disturbing clues into her past begin to surface.

“When soft-hearted Heidi Wood — successful, well-married, and mother of a late tween daughter — sees a young homeless teenage girl with a baby on a Chicago train platform in a cold April rain, she is compelled to do what she can to help. Befriending the girl, Heidi brings Willow and baby Ruby into her home unannounced, much to her husband Chris’s concern and daughter Zoe’s resentment. The disruption caused by Heidi’s obsession with Willow and Ruby lead to a very rapid disintegration of the family unit. Heidi, Chris, and Willow have very different stories to tell. As each story develops you know that disaster may be ahead, but with the author’s ability to deftly handle a complex plot filled with unexpected twists, that road ahead is filled with quickly turned pages and “late into the night” reading sessions.” — Mamie Anthoine Ney
